

Fenzi Group Acquires Kadmar

Posted on March 16, 2015 by News Editor

Southern Poland-based chemical company Kadmar, which offers a complete range of sealants, officially joined the Fenzi Group March 1.

“The Kadmar manufacturing plant is very efficient, well-organized and productive, and its costings are competitive,” says Fenzi CEO Alessandro Fenzi. “From a chemical standpoint, the company’s products are appealing. I see great potential for development within our group and the Glass Alliance network.”

Andrzej Konieczny, president of Kadmar, says joining forces with IG sealant producer Fenzi ensures the company will benefit from long-term production and sales development. Meanwhile, the move adds a new production and sales unit for the Glass Alliance network, comprised of Fenzi, Alu-Pro and Rolltech.

“With a total of 10 manufacturing units globally, two of which (Alupro Polska and Kadmar) are in Poland, the Glass Alliance further strengthens its product range with an even more complete array of insulating glass sealants,” reads a release.

This entry was posted in Today's News and tagged Fenzi, Fenzi Group, Kadmar. Bookmark the permalink.

Current Issue of USGlass Magazine

Subscribe to USGlass

Edit Your Subscription

Digital Edition Archive

HTML Edition Archive

Our Other Publications

